IMPORTANCE OF ...

The Mishna (Negaim 12:5) states the opinion of R' Yehudah who derives from: וצוה הכהן ופנו את הבית ולא יטמא כל אשר בבית that if one does not obey the Kohen and remove everything from a house possibly stricken with a נגע, all its contents will become Tomay, including things like bundles of wood which normally cannot contract Tum'ah. R' Shimon disagrees, maintaining that one must certainly obey the Kohen, but Tum'ah will only extend to those items left inside which are capable of contracting it. R' Meir says that the whole point is to illustrate how the Torah is concerned with preserving Jewish money and so, the only things one should remove are items made of חרס (earth) which cannot be purified if they should become Tomay. Is not removal of items voluntary? Would not the homeowner do so even without the Kohen's command? The Tiferes Yisroel notes several examples where the Torah obligates someone to benefit another, such as where a man is required to marry a woman (ולו תהי לאשה) but she refuses. Her refusal removes his obligation. If so, when the Torah requires the Kohen to announce pre-battle that all those who have just betrothed a wife, planted a vineyard or built a house should return home, since this is essentially for the soldiers' benefit, why does Rashi say that if such a soldier does not return home he is worthy of dying? Is it not his choice, allowing him to refuse the benefit of exemption? It must be that if the Torah were only interested in exempting him, the Posuk could have said so clearly. However, since the Torah required that the Kohen get up and make the announcements, the Torah's purpose in doing so was to obligate everyone to listen and obey the Kohen. Here too, the Torah states ... וצוה הכהן ופנו so that one may fulfill the mitzvah of obeying the Kohen while saving his possessions.

DID YOU KNOW THAT ...

The Gemara (Moed Katan 15a) states that a mourner is required to fulfill עטיפת הראש - wrapping of the head with a garment, and so is the Metzora (one afflicted with Negaim), as is derived from the words: ועל שפם יעטה - he should cover himself up to his lips. The Gemara later (24a) quotes Shmuel in saying that one can be Yotzay עטיפה (wrapping) only if one wraps one's Talis around his head in the manner of the Arabs. Rav Nachman demonstrated this method, wrapping himself up to his cheeks. However, although the obligation to wrap exists with regard to a mourner or a Metzora, there is no such obligation with regard to the Talis with which one fulfills the mitzvah of Tzitzis. The fact that a brocho להתעטף בציצית is said over the Talis only refers to the act of putting it on - not wrapping it. Still, we find universally that when saying the brocho and putting on the Talis, the custom is to wrap it around the head (and body) when putting it on. The Yabia Omer (7:1) was asked, if someone is in the middle of wrapping oneself in a Talis, if he hears Kadish or Kedusha, may he interrupt his wrapping in order to reply? On the one hand, just like Bedikas Chometz, one should begin the mitzvah and not interrupt until finished. Yet, the Rashba (Teshuvos 1:244) holds that interruptions are only a Hefsek between the brocho and the beginning of the mitzvah. Once one has begun the mitzvah, an interruption would not be a Hefsek. Otherwise, after saying HaMotzi to begin a meal one might have to keep silent until completing the meal. In fact, once one has said HaMotzi and has placed the bread in one's mouth, one may, if necessary, speak, while still chewing (etiquette aside). So too, if one hears Kadish or Kedusha while in the middle of עטיפת הראש, since he had already started to wrap, he may interrupt and respond.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK:

שואל על הפתחים וואל על הפתחים
(beg) for money/food to support his wife?

ANSWER TO LAST WEEK:

(When might one not be Yotzay eating matzoh properly at the Seder?)

If one ate the proper Shiur of matzoh with all the Chumros and Hidurim on Pesach night but that Shiur was not worth a Perutah (more and more unlikely every year), he might not be Yotzay.

DIN'S CORNER:

A Tzurah HaPesach is formed by placing a Lechi (post) on either side of an opening and stretching a Korah (rope, wire or beam) across from the top of one Lechi to the other. If an Eruv consists of such a Mechitza, and either the Korah or a Lechi comes down, the Eruv is invalidated and the population must be notified. Since today, many are lax in the laws of Eruv, some opinions advise against a general broadcast to ensure transgressors remain with a status of Shogeg (unintentional). However, those who are known to be scrupulous should be told personally. (Tikun Eruvin 5:1)

A Lesson Can Be Learned From:

When the Malbim was eighteen years old, he published his first Sefer entitled Artzos HaChaim. The Sefer was very well received and when the Malbim visited the Chasam Sofer, seeking a Haskama (approbation), the Chasam Sofer was amazed to see the depth and breadth of such a young man's Torah knowledge. At every opportunity, the Chasam Sofer would hold onto the Malbim, talking to him in learning for many hours. Late one Shabbos afternoon, the Malbim arrived in Shul shortly before Maariv. Some of the people were reciting Tehilim and the Malbim sat down in a chair and quietly dozed off. Unknowingly, the Malbim had sat down in the Chasam Sofer's chair and when the Chasam Sofer arrived in Shul and noticed someone sitting there, he sat elsewhere. Later, when the Malbim awoke and realized what he had done, he rushed over to the Chasam Sofer to apologize. The Chasam Sofer told him: "You may stay in your place". From that day on, the Malbim experienced obstacles in his learning, finding it difficult to grow, once the Chasam Sofer had said "You may stay in your place". And he locked himself in a room and wept every Motzai Shabbos before Maariv, over the loss of opportunity.
